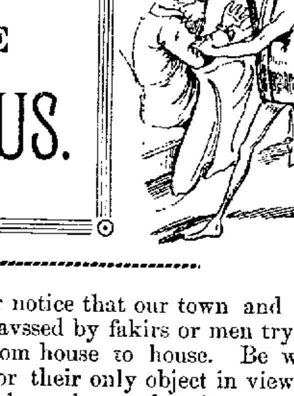
The Fakir and Tinker.



Beware o' Both,

THEY ARE

DANGEROUS.

IT has again come o our notice that our town and surrounding country is beig canavssed by fakirs or men trying to sell goods or solicit orers from house to house. Be watchful of such parties, kind reaer, for their only object in view is to get your money and giveyou in exchange the cheapest goods they can buy, and try to mke you believe that they are just as good as any jeweler would ell you for double the price. Such parties are not recogized by first-class manufacturers or men wishing to do busines in a straightforward way. Goods sold to such parties are gnerally of an inferior quality and are not handled by the honestlegitimate dealer, the jeweler.

The fakirs or pedders of watches, clocks, jewelry, silverware, etc., are, as a rule, paties wanting in knowledge, short of experience and lacking i judgment of the goods they are handling and, therefore, are noteliable parties to buy from. It requires many years of constat practice and study to gain a thorough knowledge of the jewey business, but the peddler starts out on two days' notice. Agin, the peddler will say he guarantees his goods solid gold, solidsilver or whatever quality he may see fit to say. What good ishis guarantee? It is worthless to be sure, and for two reasons–first, he does not know from experience what quality of goods e is selling, and offers you an article as being solid gold or silvr on the strength that the maker from whom he bought it ys so; as a rule they can't tell gold from brass or silver fromwhite metal, if all are well cleaned and polished. Remember is not all gold that glitters; second, because he, the peddler, is he to-day and some other place to-morrow. Where will you find hn if your goods prove unsatisfactory? If your watch gets out oorder or your jewelry broken he will not repair it for you becaue he can't, but he will direct you to the nearest jeweler.

Many other thingscould be told about the peddler, but we refrain from doing so r several reasons. The watch tinker is a man who claims hineIf to be a natural born watchmaker, or says he picked it up (he calls it) and can do repairing just as good, in many cases ltter than the jeweler, who probably has spent nearly a lifetime the business. Thesetinkers havetried and do from time to time ry to humbug the public by announcing that they are prepare to do all kinds of gold, silver and nickel plating, etc., and quottheir prices. This can't be done by any short experienced peple and with a $2 or $5 outfit. Many hundreds must be invted and men of experience to do the work.

If you are wantinga watch, clock or anything in the jewelry line, or if you have watch or clock that needs repairing or you want some plating one, give Weaver, the leading jeweler, a trial and be convincd that we are selling honest goods at honest prices, and that all pairing is done accurately and promptly for little money. We a here doing business on business principles, selling and repairingwith ironclad guarantees, and thus building a wide known reputtion for our future business.

THE LAW OF COSTS.

"Not Guilty, but to Pay the Costs" Looks Like a Legal Paradox, but Is Reasonable.

Several Pennsylvania journals have lately been criticising our law relating to costs in criminal cases, that permits a division of the costs between the parties and also permits a verdict of not guilty in a criminal case and puts the costs upon the acquitted defendant. Such a verdict certainly has the appearance of a legal paradox, but when the facts which led to the enactment of the law are dispassionately considered, the wisdom of the statute will hardly be questioned.

The law permitting a division of costs was enacted to halt the growth of petty proceedings in our criminal courts, and also to protect the county from being compelled to pay the price of such litigation when it was inspired by passion or resentment, without any just claim upon the protection of the law. That this law relating to costs has produced beneficent results cannot be doubted. It has not only hindered many entirely unwarranted prosecutions, but where such actions have been instituted it has enabled courts and juries to deal justly with the parties.

It was once very common in Pennsylvania for cross actions to be brought for assault and battery, and in very many of such cases the court and jury would discover that there was nearly or quite equal fault on both sides. The cases did not warrant the criminal conviction of either defendant, and the result in most cases was the acquittal of both parties and the county had to pay the costs. This frivolous litigation in the criminal courts became so general that it was a necessity to interpose any reasonable obstacle to its continuance, and the very best possible method was adopted by providing that the costs could be divided on any basis between the parties, or that the defendant could be acquitted and yet made to pay the entire costs of the action.

Inconsistent as it may seem at first blush, there have been very many cases in our courts in Pennsylvania when the verdict of "not guilty but the defendant to pay the costs" was a most righteous one. In these cases there was not sufficient lawlessness on the part of the defendant to warrant a criminal conviction, and yet in the judgment of the jury some punishment was merited, because some measure of provocation had been given. In such a case the acquittal of the defendant, with the requirement that he must pay the costs, is an entirely just verdict.

In many petty criminal cases, especially of assault and battery, there is more or less wrong on the part of both prosecutor and defendant. There has been no serious violation of the law requiring criminal punishment on either side, and the jury is now empowed, and we think with entire fidelity to justice, to divide the costs in such cases on any basis that seems right. The costs may be equally divided, or one may be required to pay any larger percentage that may seem equitable in the judgment of the jury.

It would be a serious mistake to efface this law relating to costs from our statutes. It was called into existence by a great public necessity; it has hindered frivolous and passionate litigation, and it has certainly served an excellent purpose, while it has done no wrong to any citizen, unless in some instances where juries may have reached an unjust judgment. It is a wise restraint upon the litigation and prosecutions which result chiefly or wholly from personal resentment, and the law should be maintained as in every way wise and just.—Phila. Times.

Republicans in Trouble.

The Republicans down in Maryland seem to be doing things somewhat after the style of those who had in hand the Alms-house affairs in our own county last year.

Before the election Senator Wellington and his friends were promising every position in the gift of the Governor for votes, and even offices under an expected Republican National administration were promised. Now, however, he says that he is going to do everything in his power, even to lobbying, to insure the passage of the reform laws pledged by the party. He also declared himself in favor of Senator Bruce's civil service reform bill; but the Republicans, who believe in the distribution of the offices to the victors, say that Mr. Wellington has undergone a great change of mind since his election to the Senatorship.

"It is learned," says the Baltimore Sun, "from the applications filed in the executive department that nearly one-half the members of the Legislature are after office for themselves and in their pursuit of spoils seem to wholly neglect the interest of constituencies.

"Nothing like it was ever known in a Maryland Legislature before. Up to date only one bill has been passed by both houses and that has received the approval of the Governor.

"One-third of the session has elapsed and nothing in the way of legislation has been completed except this private bill. The difficulty of the situation seems to be not so much with the party leaders as with the members of the Legislature, who are more engrossed in the struggle over spoils than in the struggle for good government."

THE CAUSE OF OUR TROUBLES.

Prof. Laughlin, in the February Forum

A correct analysis of the financial situation, in my judgment discloses the fact that the cause of all our monetary disturbances is not one connected with a medium of exchange, but one concerning the maintenance of a definite measure, or common denominator, in which prices and contracts are expressed. It is not now a question as to how much, but what kind of money we shall have. It was the doubt as to what kind of money, or what standard, we were to have, which brought us the panic of 1893. Politicians, manœuvring for party advantage, have been playing the game of tampering-with-the-standard at Washington, while the crippled industries of the land were burying their dead. How long will the plain people stand patiently by, and pay out of their pockets hundreds of millions of dollars, for the fun of watching a debauch of violated monetary principles?

PENNSYLVANIA COLLEGE.

A Washington Correspondent to the "Lutheran Observer" Writes the Following On the Situation:

"It was the purpose of the trustees of Pennsylvania College that the resignation of Dr. McKnight and the causes which led to it should be Board secrets for the time being. There is no good reason why everybody should not know the whole situation. And now that the secular press has spoken, and the Observer alludes so appropriately to President McKnight's resignation and to the action of the board of trustees, there is no need for any further concealment. The friends of Pennsylvania College are careful only to perpetuate and enhance its usefulness, and are of one mind, we apprehend, in regard to its honored President. The trustees, we are sure, regret that he felt constrained to offer his resignation, and yet we cherish the hope that he may be induced to withdraw it and continue in this relation to our oldest college, the relation which the church has so heartily endorsed, and which God has so greatly blessed.

"All that the Observer says of the President and of his administration is true, and more might be said truly. His election marked the birth of a new dispensation in the history of the college, whose future was never brighter than to-day. Individually, we think Dr. McKnight has made a mistake in tendering his resignation. And this we say advisedly, knowing the ordeal through which he and the college have passed during these latter years of unrest and division and strife in our Gene al Synod. It is an open secret that but for attacks made upon the college, not by those outside our General Synod, but by the brethren who have been discounting the Lutheranism of so many of us, and which have made the position of the President of Pennsylvania College so uncomfortable, he would not have resigned. Nor is it strange that after these years of unrest and of attempted depreciation of the college he should at length have been led to this crisis step. The strongest of us are human, and the time may come when an Elijah may wish to die. God knows and pities and helps our infirmities. But the time has not come for President McKnight to retire from the presidency of a college for which his gifts and experience and grace pre-eminently fit him.

"What report the committee to whom the resignation was referred may make to the trustees I do not know, nor what action the trustees may take at this special meeting just before us. The trustees are intelligent gentlemen, wholly loyal to the college and to its president. They are not given to rash nor ill-advised action. Of course it is of prime moment in the administration of the family, of the church, and of the civil government that there be entire harmony. The President of the United States deals very summarily with his constitutional advisers in times of friction, for differences inevitably arise, even among honest and conscientious men. A cabinet or lower officer antagonizing the administration has the opportunity of resigning, and in case of refusal is summarily and rightly dismissed. Crises occur in congregations, sometimes in families, as in business firms, in institutions of learning and of charity, when wisdom dictates general reorganization. In our own experience, when once occupying a chair in one of our universities, a crisis came in which the trustees requested the resignation of our whole Faculty, and as we remember, of the general Faculties of the university. They then, as the governing body, elected the men whose work and spirit would restore efficiency and harmony.

"If at all possible, and we think it is, and believe that we know the mind of the trustees, the services of Dr. McKnight must be retained in Pennsylvania College, and harmony in administration secured, no matter what it may cost. The interests of our institution are paramount to any individual or to the whole faculty of instruction combined."

Newspaper Integrity.

The practice among newspapers of accepting bribes for "puffs" is indeed pernicious, and the public will sooner or later discover the deceit. I recall an incident of this kind in a town of 6 000 or 8 000 population. A patent medicine show company played a 30 nights' engagement at the opera house, to which large crowds were at first attracted because of the newspaper praise given to the event. Not a single performance was meritorious or even respectable, yet the newspapers continued to speak of them in the most complimentary fashion—at 10 cents per line. The company spent about $5 a day in this kind of "advertising" and reaped a most bountiful harvest during the first two weeks. The patronage then began to slacken and the next two weeks there was hardly crowd enough to pay expenses. The show ceased to attract and the newspapers had lost their influence. As well might a minister, a lawyer, a doctor, or any professional man hope to succeed by deception and fraud as a newspaper which sells its honor at the rate of 10 cents a line.

This same rule holds good in all kinds of advertising. It pays a newspaper best to keep up its reputation for truth and veracity and this cannot be done if a puff is given to every fake concern which comes along. Higher principles should govern a newspaper than financial consideration. While such a feature is important, it is the least important. It should ever be the aim and object of newspaper editors and publishers to uphold the dignity of the press and they can only do this by insisting that the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth be told by advertisers as well as reporters.—Rural Press.

A Depraved Mule.

One of the brightest Virginia woman in this city has a fund of anecdote illustrative of life among the Old Dominion darkies that is not surpassed by Thomas Nelson Page himself. She was telling the other night of a young mule that had been shipped on a freight train to a farmer in Fauquier county. A tag had been tied securely around his neck with a rope, with shipping directions thereon, but in the course of his journey the mule's hunger and natural depravity had tempted him to chew up both tag and rope. This gave the darky brakeman great concern. He hurried back to the caboose and saw the conductor. "Mars George," he cried, "'fore Gawd, whar yo' spects to put off dat colt? 'E done eat up whar 'e gwine."—New York Press.

THE LAST PARADE.

They were days to be remembered,
When, at sound of trumpet call,
Young recruits we left the village,
Bent on glory one and all,
And the music round us flashing
Made us feel that evermore
Our lives were worth the living
As they never were before.
I remember the day
When we rode all away
To the dreams that the music made,
And our hopes, one and all,
When the old trumpet call
Rang out clear for our first parade.

It was glorious while it lasted,
But the years went by too soon.
Youth should stay a little longer
When a lad's a bold dragoon.
Then, like shadows from us drifting,
Comrades fell in foreign land.
Home again the roll call found us
But a broken little band.
As we rode down the street
To the old measured beat
It was tears that the music made,
And it seemed like a prayer
For the lads who would ne'er
Stand again by our side on parade.

But the marching days are over.
Veterans, now at ease we stand
Till the order comes for marching
To the last and restful land.
Only, when the troops are passing,
Our ninety years we all forget,
And the old familiar music
Makes us feel we're soldiers yet.
And we're young once again
As we hark to the strain
Till the sounds in the distance fade.
So we wait one and all
For the last trumpet call
That shall sound for the last parade.

THE BEAR GOT TOO MUCH TOBACCO.

Hen Singleton's Story of His Trip up Youngwoman Creek. The Bear Came Down the Mountain-Side After the Kit and Swallowed It All, but Paid for His Greediness, for He Took the Trout Down With Tobacco Sauce.

"Black b'ars are queer critters, an' jist as sharp as they be queer, too," declared old "Hen" Singleton, up at Waterville, the other day, where a crowd of the "boys" were swapping yarns around a big stove in the Fall Brook Station. The gang had just heard an elegant rattlesnake story from a young woodsman, and all had squirted an extra mouthful of "terbac" juice into the sawdust box, when old "Hen" opened with the quotation above. Now "Hen," by the way, is a recognized yarn-spinner, and years ago when the Pine Creek Liars' Club was in full bloom "Hen" held the responsible position of president for two terms. The qualification necessary to fill the president's chair was the ability to tell a bigger yarn than any of the other members. But this bear story "Hen" declared was "as true as preachin'" for he had seen the whole thing.

"As I wus a sayin'," remarked Hen, "b'ars are mighty cunnin', as the story I'm 'bout to tell yees will show. 'Twas in the airly part o' May last thet me 'an old Dan Fisher went troutin' up on one of the forks o' Youngwoman's Creek. Now I never wus afreed o' whole rigiment o' wildcats or any 'mount o' rattlers, but the gosh durn black b'ars allus make me skeery. Ye see, I was kerried away f'm a sugar-maple camp by a b'ar, when I wus a wee bit o' a young 'un, an' I guess that had a tendency to make me 'narvous concarnin' the pesky critters. An' dye know I kinder think a b'ar knows when a feller is afreed o' him—least-wise thet's been my 'sperience, fer I've hed more gol durn trubble in the woods bein' chased by b'ars then ever the first Pine Creekers did by the Injuns.

"Waal, p'raps yer wonderin' 'bout thet trip up Youngwoman creek I allus did pruze meseif on my luck as a trout fisherman. One thing, allus wanted to be alone when I fished, so when we left the cabin thet mornin' I says to Dan as how I'd take up one fork an' he shud fish the one 'bout a mile above, an' the one who'd the least fish when we got back in the evenin' 'd hef to buy a two poun' package o' twist 'terbac.' Waal, I fished up 'long stream p'raps three or four miles, swingin' 'em out at a purty fair rate. I hed an eight poun' basket 'long, an' I 'lowed to meself as how I'd keep hammerin' away till I hed her full. The day wus a wearin' 'long purty well to'ard noon, an' I kinder felt a little tired, when I cum to a place where a big hemlock tree, right on the bank o' the stream, made a durn invitin' place fer a rest. The tree wus right at the foot of a steep mountain what hed ben burnt off slick an' clean. Just above the tree wus a falls in the creek, an' the water cum tumblin', splashin' down over the rocks makin, as much fuss as a thundergust sawmill cuttin' shingles.

"I 'lowed as how I'd tie up a bit under the big hemlock, hev a bite to eat an' count over my ketch as fur as it went. Before startin' I hed slipped a few ginger snaps an' two or three red onions, with some salt an' pepper, in my pocket, an' my appetite was jist sharp 'nuff to 'preciate 'em 'bout then. In another pocket o' the coat I hed three slappin' big plugs o' 'terbac,' this yaller, juicy an' sweet kind what meks yer mouth water to think 'bout, 'an' is jest as good as honey to chaw. Waal, I counted my fish an' foun' I hed eighty-seven raal purty spreckled fellers. I sat the basket, with the fish off to one side an' threw the coat with the 'terbac' in 'cross it like, an' then I jist waded into them ar' ginger cookies an' onions. The falls in the creek wus makin' such a thunderin' noise that I culdn't heerd a train o' keers comin' so I jist fell to thinkin' all to myself.

"All o' a suddint I hed the life nearly skeered out o' me by a big stun as cum tumblin' pell-mell down the mountain an' went kerplunk into the creek not four feet from me. I jumped to my feet an' peeked aroun' the tree, when I sees a big black thing a comin' rollin' down the hill right straight fer me. Great Gewhillikens! I knows right off as how it wus a b'ar, an' ye kin bet yer boots I wasn't long in makin' tracks down that yar creek. I forgot my fish basket, coat an' terbaker, fish rod an' everythin' else in my hurry to git out o' way o' thet pesky black varmint. I never stopped a runnin' untill I got down near to the main stream, whar I met old Dan a comin' up. He'd hed poor luck on the other branch an' 'lowed as how he try my stream.

"Waal, when Dan see me he larfed until I wus afeered he'd bust an' the more excited I got the harder he'd larf. Finally he settled down and perposed thet we go back an' see whether Mr. Ba'r was still thar. He 'lowed as how he'd stan' fight with the critter with his big jack-knife ef I'd keep him f'm huggin' him too hard, so we started back.

"Seemed to me as though we war an all-fired long time gittin' up to the big hemlock. I didn't know I'd kivered so much groun' in sich a short time as it tuk me to come down. Finally we got in sight of the tree, and durn my pictures ef thar warn't that b'ar a-lyin' on the rock jist whar I sot when he rolled the stun down at me. But what ailed the critter? He was actin' like as he wus crazy. Fust he'd lay down; then he'd riz up on his hunkers; then he'd poke his head out like a pig as wus ready to croak. My trout basket wus upset an' empty, fer the durn ba'r hed swallowed the hull kit an kapoodle. Thet's what he wanted when he skeerd me away. He was arter my fish, the lazy duffer, an' he got 'em, too.

"Waal, the b'ar took no notis o' Dan an' me till we war within twenty yards o' him. We stood watchin' him a rollin' an' a squirmin' around on the rock. PERIL IN CHANGING NECKTIES.

WHY A MAN SHOULD CLING TO ONE STYLE OF NECKWEAR.

"You would be surprised, I suppose," said an uptown physician to a New York Sun writer, "if I told you that a large percentage of the cases of cold on the lungs or in the bronchial tubes that I've had this winter are directly traceable to the fashion in neckties, but that is the fact. I first got an inkling of this from the case of a well-known club man here, who passes so much time changing his clothes every day that he doesn't get an opportunity to do much else. He's a pretty handy fellow, however, and I was considerably puzzled when, with the beginning of the cold weather, he developed a hard cold, and followed it up with another and another and another, so that finally he had a narrow shave from developing pneumonia. When I was nearly ready to give up the puzzle it happened that I met him twice in one day and got the solution. In the morning he wore a big puff scarf; in the afternoon a little bow tie. I got him into my office and gave him a lecture, at the conclusion of which I asked him:

"'Do you expect to wad a lot of warm silk over the most sensitive spot in your chest in the morning and take it off in the afternoon, substituting a mere wisp, and not feel the effects?'

"'I never thought of that,' he said; 'I'll try sticking to the Ascot scarf for a while.'

"He did, and hasn't had a cold since, now, when a man comes to me with a cold on his lungs, I prescribe a heavy silk Ascot scarf for him. It's the best chest protector out."

He Wasn't Started Right.

"You are rich and talented."

He nodded assent.

"Yet you do nothing worthy of your opportunities."

He sighed.

"Have you no ambition for a great public career?"

A look of despair crept into his eyes.

"I had—once," he said, brokenly, "but that dream was shattered by a fearful revelation my father made to me when I left college. It is hopeless—hopeless."

His friends sneered. "Some petty scandal in the family history, I suppose," he muttered impatiently.

"Worse—worse than that."

"Insanity in the family?"

There was note of real alarm in his friend's voice as he asked this question.

"No—no. Wealth, breeding, brains count for nothing against adverse fate. I can never have a great public career. I was not born in a log cabin. My parents always lived in a brick house." —Chicago Press.

"Eh? Did you do as I said—leave a cake for examination at every house, then go around in a week and demand payment for every cake which had been wet?"

"Yes. Every cake was handed back to me as fresh as new."

"Strange! What street did you select for the game?"

"Blank street."

"Humph! No wonder it failed. That street is chock full of Anarchists."

MRS. BRICKTOP (bursting with pride) —"How d'ye like my new carpet, Mrs. Crossye?"

"Lawn-mower? Why, certainly. But what on earth do you want with a lawn-mower this time of the year?"

"I desire to thin down our velvet carpet in the nursery a little, the children are always losing their marbles in it."

"WHAT I need," said the statesman, in speaking of his work in Washington, "is a good private secretary to look after my correspondence so that I can give more time to affairs in the House."

"What you need," returned his constituent earnestly, "is a real good man to edit your speeches while you attend to your correspondence. It would be foolish to have your letters more concise and better written than your public addresses."—Chicago Post.

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

A NEW PROCESS WHICH WILL CERTAINLY BE OF VAST BENEFIT TO THE HUMAN KIND.

Prominent scientific students have recently been experimenting with the lately discovered Roentgen process, by which objects can be photographed through opaque substances. For instance electrician Charles E. Scribner and Dr. James Burry made some practical experiments last Thursday in the laboratory of the Western Electric Company, Chicago. Casper Schmidt, who had been shot in the hand two years ago, was suffering from a pain in the palm, but he had been unable to locate the affected part. After an hour's exposure to the cathode rays a plate was developed disclosing the presence of a buckshot below one of the knuckles, which will be removed.

Edward P. Thompson, of New York, a consulting electrical engineer, who has been experimenting with Professor Roentgen's discovery, said last Thursday that he had discovered a process whereby motion, otherwise invisible, might be observed with the use of the new X rays. The movements of a watch can be observed through the case, and the operation of the interior organs of a living human being or animal be made visible.

The value of such a discovery to the science of surgery and medicine may be imagined from the claim of the inventor, when it is said that with it the action of the heart and the digestion of food can be observed.

"In the process as carried out by Roentgen, the effect of the cathode rays after passing through opaque objects must be developed by photography, and therefore a great deal of time is occupied by the exposure and the obtaining of the picture," said Mr. Thompson.

"By my process it is intended that objects ordinarily invisible may be examined instantly, and especially that motion may be represented to the eye.

"Again, with powerful rays it ought to be possible with this process to see the action of the muscles and joints when one's finger is bent; or to be able to distinguish a sprain from a break by moving the arm back and forth; or to see the circulation of the blood, the beating of the heart and the motion of sap in trees and plants and of all other objects which at present cannot be observed.

"Photography is not used in any connection with these experiments, and the figures which you observe are made by throwing the shadows of the invisible moving particles by the X rays upon platinacyanide in the end of a dark tube."

The new process has been given the name of radiography. The results are not obtained by a direct light, but by means of radiating rays. Those who are experimenting and are conversant with the whole process are at a loss to explain where the actinic principle lies. The rays will work through such opaque substances as leather, wood, etc., but fail to penetrate glass, bone or metal.

In proof of this statement the experiment of photographing coins in a purse was successful. The light penetrated the leather and located the coins. A further experiment was made with a human hand. The bone formation was traceable, and even the veins discernible in the result. A diamond in the ring, however, caught the rays and reflected them. Work will be continued daily at the laboratories, and as soon as a large apparatus is fixed up research will be made in the direction of the application of the process to surgery.

Plain Words in the Senate.

In his speech on the Monroe doctrine, Senator Smith, of New Jersey, made a statement which has no bearing at all on the subject of his address, but which will be heartily approved, nevertheless. "The great majority of people throughout the country," he said, "are disgusted with Congress in general and the Senate in particular. The most popular thing we could do to-day, and probably the most beneficial thing, would be to pass the necessary appropriation bills and go home. The mere fact that we are in session is a menace to the revival of business and the return of prosperity." A profounder truth has not been uttered since the present Congress began its erratic performances, early in December. Not a bill has been passed for the public welfare, and no sincere effort has been made to pass one. The House passed a bond bill which was not desired and a tariff bill which was simply the first step toward restoring the high-tariff laws repudiated nearly four years ago. The Republican majority in the Senate has bargained with populists and given the silver men possession of the finance committee. The Senate has also passed a free-coinage bill, and, with the exception of uniting with the House to depress business by jingo talk and threats of war, has done nothing else. Senator Smith understands the situation fully. The people are disgusted with Congress and would welcome its adjournment.

Truth's Fables—The Horse and the Ass.

A Horse, proud of his fine trappings, met an Ass on the highway. The Ass, being heavily laden with a cane and a large chrysanthemum, moved slowly out of the way. "Hardly," said the Horse, "can I resist kicking you with my heels." The Ass grew real angry and dashed his cigarette at the Horse, saying: "You howid cweatuh, if you dare to kick me I shawn't evah go to anothah one of youah beastly old shows in the Gahden, so thaiah!"

Moral: The horse should have kicked him instead of talking through his hames.

OUR DEPRESSED AGRICULTURE.

THE FARMER IS AN EXPORTER, A HIGH TARIFF IS AN INTERFERENCE. HE BUYS MANUFACTURED ARTICLES, THE PRICE OF WHICH ARE RAISED BY HIGH TARIFF. HE SUFFERS BOTH WAYS.

I am impressed with the thought how completely the farmers' political theories have become hypnotized during the last third of a century by the wand of protectionism!

It is not necessary to quote statistics to prove to farmers that the business they are engaged in is depressed; something closer at hand has proved it to them. If farm laborers had not been entered in the census simply as "laborers," it is probable that more people would be shown to be engaged in agriculture in this country than in all other employments combined.

In 1860, before the era of high protection, which placed farmers in competition with the world in selling and shut them out from that competition in buying, they owned about one-half the wealth of the nation. After thirty years of "protection," they own less than one-fifth! A further careful analysis of the statistics shows that the period from 1840 to 1860, which was the time of our nearest approach to free trade, was one of remarkable prosperity for farmers, their individual gains being greater during that period than during any other in our history; and notwithstanding the accelerated haste with which the government has continued to dispose of its public domain, the average gain during that time was more than twice as much as it has been in any decade since the latter date.

Some two years ago, while on the cars, I fell into conversation on the tariff with my seat partner, who turned out to be the chairman of a State Republican committee; and finding I was a farmer, he promised to send me some reading matter on the subject. In time two pamphlets arrived, both published by the same State committee, and both evidently intended to catch the farm vote. The first made the most positive assertion, backed by a long argument, that a protective tariff always resulted in lowering the price of the article protected. The second pamphlet was equally emphatic in asserting that a tariff on tobacco had always resulted in increasing the price of that article—sometimes more than doubling it—and proved it by a table of market prices covering a long series of years! This is a fair sample of protective argument, and should be considered in connection with the bold assumption that we are impoverished because a million or two of our young men, when the war was over, ceased to destroy and began once more to produce, and that in order to increase its store of wealth, a nation should give no heed to whatever wealth is being carried out of the country, but must assume that every one is a criminal who attempts to bring wealth in!

Protection simply obstructs commerce and makes it more difficult and expensive, (the same result could be accomplished more cheaply by filling our harbors with rocks) and its effect upon our industry has been to crowd the books of real estate agents with farms for sale; to burden the western papers with foreclosure notices; to increase the tenant farmers during the last decade 50 per cent., and the mortgage indebtedness 156 per cent. It has caused the creation of vast corporations whose sole business it is to peddle farm mortgages as an investment for the accumulated wealth of manufacturing towns, their siphon lines extending in a network over the whole country; it has caused the anamolous spectacle of food begging for a market, at even less than cost, side by side with idle workmen begging food. While the nation is increasing in wealth at the rate of more than six millions of dollars a day, we naturally wonder what becomes of it all.—C. E. BENTON, in the Country Gentleman.

The Personal Side of Washington.

General A. W. Greely, of Arctic fame, begins, in the March Ladies' Home Journal, his articles on George Washington, which are expected to create considerable discussion. General Greely has read over 2,000 of Washington's private letters, and he writes in a frank, unbiased way of the personal side of Washington. His first article will deal with the loves and courtships of Washington and his final marriage to the widow Custis. General Greely's articles are not likely to confirm the estimate of those who regard Washington in an ideal way. But they are truthful and admirably portray the man as he was,—in reality.

PROF. JAMES BRYCE, M. P., author of "The American Commonwealth," is to contribute to early numbers of The Century a group of three papers on South Africa, the fruit of his study of that region during a recent trip from which he returned to London about the first of January. At a time when public attention is so largely occupied with this interesting region, the dispassionate writing of a trained observer and philosophical statesman like Mr. Bryce cannot fail to have weight.

THE March number of The Forum will contain a remarkable and profoundly interesting article on "Family Life in the United States," by the eminent French novelist and critic Th. Bentzon (Mme Blanc), author of "The Condition of Women in the United States."

"YOU used to say you thought heaven sent me to you," she said tearfully after a little family jar.

"I see no reason to change my mind about that now," he returned.

"Really!" she exclaimed delightedly.

"Certainly," he replied. Then he spoiled it all by adding—"As a punishment."—Chicago Post.

THE CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION.

Our contemporary, the York Gazette seems to be especially concerned in the proposal to take the Congressional nomination from Adams this year that a gentleman from York county may be elected to Congress from this district. It says, for instance: "The only graceful and Democratic thing for them (the Democrats of Adams) to do would be to say that a Congressional convention of the whole district, fairly chosen and equitably representative, should name the man."

What does the Gazette mean by "equitably representative?" This: representation by numbers. In other words "equitable representation" would result in about 12 delegates, calculating by the thousand votes, being sent to the nominating convention by York, and 8 by Cumberland and Adams together, giving York a majority always, resulting in the Congressman coming from York invariably. How will the Gazette or the Democrats of York figure it out so as to make that arrangement equitable. The two smaller counties ought to be represented and they ought to have a fair share in the government of the district. How will they get any share if they together have but a minority in nominating conventions? It would be very decidedly unfair and un-Democratic for the Democrats of York to force us into a position wherein we are to be nonentities.

The Gazette says that it was never the idea to give any of the counties two turns, but that a renomination was a compliment to the incumbent. Whether it was a compliment or whatever the nominations and elections in the districts have been the following since the district was formed:

York,	1874, Levi Maish; 1876, Levi Maish.
Cumberland,	1878, F. E. Beltzhoover; 1880, F. E. Beltzhoover.
Adams,	1882, Wm. A. Duncan; 1884, Wm. A. Duncan was elected, but died before being qualified. At a special election in December 23, 1884, Dr. John A. Swope was elected to fill the vacancy; 1885, Dr. John A. Swope.
York,	1886, Levi Maish; 1888, Levi Maish.
Cumberland,	1890, F. E. Beltzhoover; 1892, F. E. Beltzhoover.
Adams,	1894, P. H. Strubinger, J. A. Stahle elected.

Since, as will be seen, each of the other counties has had its two turns, would it not be much more graceful and Democratic to give Adams its two before suggesting a change in the system, especially since there is reason to believe that Adams will give the district an acceptable candidate.

The fact that Adams did not support her nominee two years ago is no reason for supposing that she will not support her nominee to be placed on the ticket this fall. Conditions are changing in Adams county and it is to be hoped that they will continue to change until the nominations made by Democratic conventions will be nominations by the whole Democratic party, acceptable to all, to be supported by all.

However, all this discussion may be uncalled for and unnecessary, for perhaps the Gazette does not represent Democratic sentiments in York county. But if it does, we will ask that the opportunity be given all the Democrats of Cumberland and Adams to express their approval or disapproval before any steps whatever be taken.

We quote below a considerable part of the Gazette's editoral. It is the part containing the only point advanced by the Gazette, which, while it looks like an argument, it is rather an excuse for proposing the change than a reason for so doing:

"And in the second place the rotation system, as it has always been understood, would not give Adams the privilege this year of naming the nominee. Some people have the idea that the rotation system means that each of the three counties in the district in succession is to fill the office for four years. That never was the understanding. The understanding was that the counties in succession were to name the nominee, each incumbent being granted the compliment of a re-nomination if his services had been acceptable to the district and there were no valid objections. There was no idea of giving any county four years of representation. The compliment and privilege were accorded to the incumbent of the office and not to the county in which he lived, the idea being that no man would care to break in upon his profession or business for only two years in public life and that to make up for the demoralizing effect upon his income he ought to be at least four years in the office.

"Adams county has had its privilege of nomination in its turn, and the man it named was defeated and the county that named him went back on him. There is therefore now no Democratic incumbent to compliment with another term. Under the rotation system therefore, construed as it has always been understood, it would be York county's turn this year to name the nominee. But York county, instead of insisting upon this privilege in this shape, prefers, as an act of reason and justice, to put an end to the rotation system because it is unfair and un-Democratic, and to have a selection made from the district and not from any particular county, prefers to have the voters of the district controlled by no minority and by no section, prefers to obliterate county lines and to have the Congressman from this district truly representative of all the people of the district. At a convention so held this year candidates from Adams and Cumberland will have the same standing before it as candidates from York. This bars out neither Adams nor Cumberland. York county is really giving up a right in order that an unjust system may be terminated."

This is a matter of consequence to Cumberland and Adams counties. They ought to be informed of all the facts. Will our York brethren state their reasons for this move.

CUMBERLAND WITH ADAMS.

The Carlisle Volunteer says, after quoting the COMPILER'S editorial of last week:

"There are some Democrats in York county that are seeking to break the rotation rule on the Congressional question. While there are sound arguments against the rule we don't believe it policy to rescind it now while the district is under a Republican cloud. It would cause dissatisfaction, as the breaking away from the old always does, and prolong Republican rule that now holds us in bondage. Let us first get back on to a firm basis, become fully reinstated as the dominant party of the district—not of York county alone—and then agitate the reasons for the abrogation of the rotation rule. Under existing conditions the Democracy of Cumberland county are so related to Adams county that it is to their interest to stand by Adams county in the Congressional matter. This we believe will be done, if wise counsels prevail."

A TELEGRAPHIC d'spatch received from St. Petersburg, last Friday, says that a Siberian trader named Kouchnareff, who is the agent of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the Norwegian explorer, who sailed in the Fram June 24, 1893, for the Arctic regions, has received information to the effect that Dr. Nansen has reached the North Pole, has found land there, and is now returning toward civilization.

SILVER AND TARIFF.

Two of the most important and significant votes of this session of Congress were taken last Thursday, one in the House and the other in the Senate. The House defeated the silver bill by an overwhelming majority, and the Senate refused to consider the tariff bill by a vote of 29 to 21. The latter is by far the more important action of the two. It was known absolutely that the House would not concur in the Senate's substitution of a silver bill for the bond bill, and the only curiosity felt regarding the matter was respecting the size of the majority against the proposition. The tariff question is one, however, to which the Eastern Republicans attach the utmost consequence, and its practical defeat, it is assumed, disposes most probably of the whole question for the remainder of the session. The vote was not a perfect test of the strength of the factions in the Senate on the tariff, but it is claimed by the opponents of the measure that a vote taken with a full Senate would show a larger majority against the bill.

QUAY'S Philadelphia organ, the Inquirer, says: "Senator Quay means business. When he makes a positive declaration he stands by it. This is an attribute of the man. He has said with his own lips that he is a candidate for the Presidency of the United States. It may be taken for granted, therefore, that he will leave no stone unturned to secure the nomination. The manner in which Pennsylvania is rallying around him must bring delight to his soul. There is no doubt whatever that the delegation to St. Louis will be practically unanimous for him."

Quay for President.

Our Washington correspondent writes: The Quay-Platt-Reed combine put a new comedy on the political boards this week by announcing the candidacy of Senator Quay for the Republican Presidential nomination. It was expected to make a political sensation, but it didn't. Quay's candidacy, although followed by a qualified denial from him, may be accepted by the gullible Republicans of Pennsylvania as a thing of life, just as many New York Republicans have accepted the candidacy of Gov. Morton; launched by the same combine, but, bless your soul, that doesn't make it so. There isn't the slightest doubt among politicians that this combine wants Reed nominated, nor that this alleged Quay boom is like the Morton boom only intended by the combine as another step toward Reed's nomination. In addition to that, this Quay boom is being used to let Senator Cameron, who has already been forced by Quay to announce that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the Senate, understand that the money he has put into his literary bureau, established to boom him as a Republican silver candidate for the Presidential nomination, has all been wasted and that his political aspirations may now be pigeonholed for good and all. Quay wants to control the Pennsylvania delegation, just as Platt does that of New York. They will at the proper time throw them to Reed, unless it becomes apparent before that time that Reed can't be nominated. In that case they will throw them to the man they can make the most advantageous deal with. They are out to win. They would prefer doing it with Reed, but will not hesitate to throw him overboard if it becomes necessary to win with some other man.

The Republican Senators are still very much in doubt about their future programme. They are trying to make some sort of a deal with the populist to get the House tariff bill through the Senate without amendment. They have not yet attempted to elect the Senate officers nominated by their caucus with the exception of the Assistant Doorkeeper who was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Captain Bassett.

Pattison for President.

Resolutions Endorsing ex-Governor Pattison—Allentown the Place of Meeting of the State Convention.

At the meeting of the Democratic State Committee, held in Harrisburg last Wednesday, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That the Democratic State central committee recommend that the Democracy of Pennsylvania present to the Democratic National Convention the name of ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison as that of a strong and available candidate for the Presidency. In character, in ability, in official experience, in the impartial and fearless discharge of public duties, Mr. Pattison is well equipped for the high office for which we recommend him. Enjoying to the fullest extent the confidence of the people because of his steadfast adherence to the cause of good government, his selection as the standard-bearer of the Democratic party would be met by generous and enthusiastic approval. Sound in Democratic principles, his leadership would be such that all Democrats might safely follow."

Allentown was the choice of place for the meeting of the convention. A resolution was adopted fixing the date of the convention on April 29, six days after the meeting of the Republican State convention. The time designated was generally satisfactory, and no amendment was offered. The State Convention will nominate two candidates for Congressmen-at-large, and select thirty-two Presidential electors and sixty-four delegates to the National Convention. All the business of the committee was done without any friction.

Nervous

People often wonder why their nerves are so weak; why they get tired so easily; why they start at every slight but sudden sound; why they do not sleep naturally; why they have frequent headaches, indigestion and nervous

Dyspepsia

The explanation is simple. It is found in that impure blood which is continually feeding the nerves upon refuse instead of the elements of strength and vigor. In such condition opiate and nerve compounds simply deaden and do not cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla feeds the nerves pure, rich, red blood; gives natural sleep, perfect digestion, is the true remedy for all nervous troubles.

Another cold wave struck us last night and this (Monday) morning, the thermometer marking two degrees below zero.

Last Monday night the school-house near James Watson's was burned to the ground. It is supposed that it caught fire from the stove pipe. The loss will not be very heavy as it was the least valuable in the township. Our Board of Directors will have the question of building several new houses to decide this year. In addition to the one burned, a new house is wanted at, or near, Orrtanna, and there is great need of another room in town, to relieve the primary, which has been kept in a rented room for several years, and which is not at all adapted to the needs of the children.

Superintendent Thoman visited the schools in town, and vicinity last week.

A sad ending to their sport. On Saturday evening, Feb. 8th, a lot of young fellows happened to get together at the store of J. D. English at Maria Furnace Station, and, to while away the time, were trying their strength and dexterity in different ways. Among those present was Daniel Smith, son of Wm. Smith, aged about 19. After the performance was over he walked home, some three miles, and seemed to feel no ill effects from his exertions but the next morning he complained of not feeling well and a physician was summoned and on an examination found an internal rupture for which he could do nothing, and the young man lingered until Wednesday night, when he died.

WE know of but one community in the world where dyspepsia is practically unknown, and that is the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, N. Y. These good people have been studying the subject of digestion for more than a hundred years, and that they understand it pretty thoroughly, is evidenced in the foregoing fact. Their Digestive Cordial is the safest and best remedy in cases of indigestion that we know of. A trial bottle can be had through your druggists for the trifling sum of 10 cents.

The Shaker Digestive Cordial supplies the system with food already digested, and at the same time aids the digestion of other foods. It will almost instantly relieve the ordinary symptoms of indigestion, and no sufferer need to be told what these are.

Grand Jury Report.

TO THE HONORABLE THE JUDGES OF THE COURTS OF QUARTER SESSIONS OF THE PEACE IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF ADAMS, PENNA.

The Grand Jury of the County of Adams at this term of Court report as follows, viz:

That we have acted on all the Bills or Indictments laid before us by the District Attorney, viz: thirteen, twelve of which were returned as true bills and one ignored.

We have visited the Alms-house and found everything in and about it in a clean and orderly condition, the unfortunate inmates being well cared for and made as comfortable as their circumstances will admit of; evincing unremitting attention on the part of the Steward, Matron and employees. We also visited the Jail and found it in first-class condition as far as could be in the condition the building is in and would not recommend the expenditure of more money on the old building than is actually necessary, but would recommend the erection of a new building and wall as soon as conveniently can be done.

We take pleasure in returning our thanks to the Court for the able charge delivered to us, and to the District Attorney and all the other officers for their kind attention and courtesy extended to us while in the discharge of our duties.

Respectfully submitted.

In re-establishing the House after having been closed for two years the business was light and consequently some of the rooms were not used a half dozen times, and one can see that it is as practically new as when received from the manufacturer.

The articles required to carry on as large a House as the Springs Hotel are too numerous to mention. Come and see them, and if you need anything bring your wagons with straw or wrappings and rope, you will not go away without buying. We specially note, however, the low price of

OAK SUITS OF FURNITURE,

Hair Mattresses and Springs at almost half retail price. Parlor Suit at about half the price retailed at in the city. Upright Piano, Carpets and Matting at 50 per cent. below what they can be sold for in a regular way, and a thousand other things which all families need.

The House will be comfortably heated, the large dining room will be used as a store room, where samples of everything will be exhibited.

The terms will be cash or negotiable paper acceptable to the banks, payable at dates on or before April 1st, 1896.

Sale will commence on Wednesday, Dec. 11th, 1895. H. YINGLING.

The National Guards.

It is Said That the Chances are in Favor of Gettysburg

It seems to be definitely determined that a division encampment of the National Guards of Pennsylvania will be held this year, and there is a strong hope that seven a number of localities to secure the encampment which will be in July R Dawson Coleman, of Lemon, had a conference with Governor Hastings last week at which he offered to put the grounds at Mount Gretna in good condition for the camp Captain James P Long and Daniel K Miller are looking after the interests of Gettysburg The citizens of Perry county have offered a site in the vicinity of Duncannon

Captain Long says that the chances are in favor of Gettysburg, but he and Mr Miller have secured a bond for obtaining over 1,000 for the basis of the offer of this borough for the purpose We understand that this money is to be used in paving for the grounds after supply in other incidental expenses and the debt which still remains from a similar encampment, four years ago contracted for the same purpose

The matter of securing a permanent site for the Division" says the Telegraph "is a serious one After 1000 acres is needed to properly borrow the three brigades and provide a parade ground of sufficient dimensions Then after a suitable site is found comes the all important question of cost and this is the point upon which the encampments have generally split Heretofore the Commissioners have refused to appropriate a cent, and the people of the locality selected have had to pay the bills Under the present Commissioners a new course will be pursued and the people will be asked to bond the county for the amount necessary to secure the encampment, and then the Commissioners will levy a tax sufficient to pay the bonds and interest when they become due This will be the first time that a request of this kind has been made of the Commissioners of the county, and they will be disposed to favorably consider it, but they will not be committed to any course that may be suggested until they have had an opportunity of thoroughly investigating the matter"

County Agricultural Association.

The Adams County Agricultural Association held its monthly meeting in Brodie's Hotel Arendtsville, Pa, on Saturday the 15th Enos Samuel Bream in the chair Under the head of unfinished business John L Bushey gave a report of his attending the annual meeting of the State Board of Agriculture held January 22d and 23d, in Harrisburg in which he said he was present and represented the Adams County Agricultural Association in the matter of the Farmers' Institutes to be held in Adams county during the month of February Reports were also made by Messrs Bushey and Bream of the Farmers' Institutes held at Bendersville and Arendtsville, which were very interesting and instructive Mr Bushey also reported that he had attended the meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society held in Philadelphia, and that he would be pleased to answer any questions that any member might wish to ask him concerning the meeting Mr Bushey also reported that he had attended the meeting of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association held in Philadelphia, and that he would be pleased to answer any questions that any member might wish to ask him concerning the meeting Mr Bushey also reported that he had attended the meeting of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association held in Philadelphia, and that he would be pleased to answer any questions that any member might wish to ask him concerning the meeting

The following resolutions were then offered by Mr Bushey and unanimously adopted

Resolved That the Secretary of this Association be instructed to write to the Secretary of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society and request that the Society hold its next meeting in Gettysburg, Pa, and that the Secretary of this Association be instructed to write to the Secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association and request that the Association hold its next meeting in Gettysburg, Pa, and that

INCREASING THE YIELDS.

HOW TO HELP WORN-OUT SOILS—THE BEST WAY TO IMPROVE IMPOVERISHED LAND IS TO PUT IT IN CLOVER AND PLOW UNDER—VALUE OF LIME.

Farmers who have been affected by a decline in prices are compelled to increase the yields of their crops in order to derive as much profit as possible from the soil at the lowest cost. This is a matter in which the large majority of farmers are interested and although the subject has not been overlooked in this department, yet it is one that can always be discussed with benefit to those interested. Lands are frequently worn out because crops have been taken from them without returning to the soil an equivalent for that which was removed. What the quantity may be depends upon the character of the soil, the nature of the crops grown thereon, the mode of cultivation and the amount of manure or fertilizer applied (if any).

The farmer who at present has a farm lacking in fertility cannot patiently wait two or three years to restore it to its original condition, but must devise the best methods possible for securing a profit the coming year. If he has a large heap of manure he should spread it on his land and plow it in as soon as the weather will permit, but if he is not so fortunate he can resort to fertilizers. First the land for any kind of crop must be plowed and then harrowed very fine in order to admit more warmth to the soil and to prepare a proper seed bed for the seed. Fertilizers may also fail if there is a lack of sufficient rain, as there are many conditions which cannot be controlled, while thorough cultivation must be given until late in the season. Where land produces 25 bushels of corn per acre more fertilizers will be required than when it is in good condition. An application of 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, 300 pounds of sulphate of potash and 250 pounds of bone meal should raise the yield to 60 bushels per acre. Apply one-third of the fertilizer in the hills just before planting, scattering it well, and then broadcast the remainder between the rows when the corn is a foot high, using the cultivator to work it in. The ingredients should be well mixed before applying.

Fertilizers on oats and wheat are usually drilled in with the seed. Apply 200 pounds of bone meal and 250 pounds of sulphate of potash in the fall, on wheat, and in the spring run a smoothing harrow over the field and apply 150 pounds of nitrate of soda (Chili saltpetre). For oats the same fertilizers may be used. Potatoes should be selected for good seed and carefully cut, as many failures are due to the seed. As much as 1200 pounds of fertilizer per acre has been applied by some experimenters. A mixture of 250 pounds of sulphate of ammonia, 350 pounds of sulphate of potash, and 200 pounds of bone meal should give good results. Two-thirds of the mixture should be broadcasted and harrowed in. The remainder should be applied on the row after the potatoes are planted, when the rows may be then leveled with a harrow.

Any fertilizer not used by the crops will remain over, to a certain extent, for some crop the next year. Owing to the expense of procuring fertilizers farmers are unwilling to use as large quantities as they should, but if a farm is run down it has parted with its wealth, and its riches cannot be restored by any process without a somewhat corresponding expenditure to regain that which has been carried away in the shape of crops grown in previous years. The cheapest method of restoring the soil is to put the land in clover and plow under the second crop. The best mode of securing clover is to apply 40 bushels of air-slacked lime now and 200 pounds of sulphate of potash per acre when seeding down the clover. Any kind of green crops that can be plowed under, such as millet, buckwheat, rye, cow peas, crimson clover, etc., will be beneficial, but always apply lime on the land after such crops are turned under.

Frequently the soil is poor because it lacks lime, although it may contain other substances more plentifully. At all events lime is the best of all substances on poor land in proportion to cost and benefit derived. Let it air-slack until fine, then plow the land, apply from 20 to 40 bushels per acre, and harrow it in. The fall is the best time to apply it, but better now than not use it at all. Its effects will be noticed for several seasons. Wood ashes contain both lime and potash and are always beneficial. It is difficult to give the exact proportions of fertilizers for crops owing to conditions, but the quantities mentioned may be decreased or increased according to the fertility of the soil. Lime and green crops plowed under will bring any farm back to fertility but to do so requires several years time.—Phila. Record.

IT is very common on some farms to keep the grindstone out of doors, sheltered only by the foliage of some tree in summer, but in winter exposed to all kinds of storms. These stones are always more or less porous. If they were not they would not make good material to sharpen metal cutting tools. When a grindstone gets wet and the moisture in it freezes, pieces of the stone chip off and the stone wears away unevenly, thus soon becoming of very little value.

THE ideal food for breeding sows is a mixture of two bushels of oats and one bushel of peas, fed whole with mangels. The cost of grinding is saved and the food is well chewed. Wheat middlings with milk, when had, and beets is another favorite ration. Laxative foods make the muscles yielding and there is no trouble when farrowing.—National Stockman.

THOSE who make cattle pay give their attention to quality. It is a well known fact that choice beef is not always plentiful in the market and brings better prices than the usual quotations. Farmers who make beef cattle pay will not attempt to fatten any but the ones that bring the best prices.

IT costs at least one-third more to produce a pound of pork after the first than before. If a pig does not pay a profit by the time it is 10 months old it will hardly do so after it passes that age. Young pork is not only the best and cheapest, but brings the highest prices in market.

DAMP poultry houses may be made dry by placing lumps of stone lime in the corners of the house. The lime will absorb the moisture and also assist in warding off disease.

IN estimating the value of fertilizers and barnyard manure do not overlook the cost of hauling. Manure that is spread over a field close to the barn will cost less than if it is spread over a distant field. The item of labor is one that must always be included in the expenses.

Woman's Realm.

MAKE THE HOME A BLESSING.

The Love of Children is Innate in the Heart of every True Man and Woman.

All that is beautiful and lovely in woman, finds its climax in motherhood. How often we find among our American women that longing for the prattling voice, the idol of their waiting hearts. It is a natural instinct, this yearning of the heart for offspring; yet the wife hesitates to talk with the family physician on this delicate subject. A good way to do is to send for a medical book on "Woman and Her Diseases," (168 pages) sent, sealed in a plain envelope, on receipt of 10 cents in stamps, for postage, if you address the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

The reflections of a married woman are not pleasant if she be delicate, run-down, or debilitated. She feels "played out." Her smile and her good spirits have taken flight. It worries her husband as well as herself.

This is the time to build up her strength and cure those weaknesses or ailments which are the cause of her trouble. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores perfect health and strength.

It's a safe remedial agent, an invigorating tonic and nervine which cures all those disorders, weaknesses and derangements incident to womanhood.

Danger Signals

More than half the victims of consumption do not know they have it. Here is a list of symptoms by which consumption can certainly be detected:—

Cough, one or two slight efforts on rising, occurring during the day and frequently during the night.
Short breathing after exertion.
Tightness of the chest.
Quick pulse, especially noticeable in the evening and after a full meal.
Chilliness in the evening, followed by Slight fever.
Perspiration toward morning and
Pale face and languid in the morning.
Loss of vitality.

If you have these symptoms, or any of them, do not delay. There are many preparations which claim to be cures, but Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption has the highest endorsements, and has stood the test of years. It will arrest consumption in its earlier stages, and drive away the symptoms named. It is manufactured by the Acker Medicine Co., 16 and 18 Chambers St., New York, and sold by all reputable druggists.

Blending the Breeds.

The Pure Strain is Best.

Why Efforts to Obtain General Purpose Animals Cannot Possibly Result in Good—Experiments With Poultry.

The desire to find an animal which combines all the desirable qualities found in several breeds has greatly influenced farmers in their selection of stock, and yet reflection should teach and convince them that the general purpose animal is an impossibility, because extremes cannot be brought together and made to do service harmoniously. The consideration of the claims of any class of stock will show that any effort to blend all breeds into one must result in failure, as such a result will be the obliteration of the breeds. Take the breeds of horses and compare them. The conformation of the thoroughbred runner, which gallops, differ greatly from the trotter, while the structure of the Clydesdale and Percheron is so dissimilar to the fleet runners and trotters as to utterly destroy the breeds should crossing be resorted to. Cattle have been classified into breeds that excel for beef, milk and butter. These characteristics have been secured by centuries of selection. To attempt to combine them in one breed is to destroy them, because where a gain is made in one direction there is a corresponding loss elsewhere, and failure ensues. Two opposites can never be made to meet, and any deviation from the work of centuries will require centuries of work to overcome what has been accomplished.

CROSSING OF BREEDS.

It has been contended that by the crossing of breeds an animal can be produced that will combine at least some of the advantages of both parents. The fact is that there is no room for experiments in crossing. The breeds themselves are the results of crossing, and all such work has been done long ago, only that the crossing heretofore done has resulted in selections which have given farmers breeds with fixed characteristics. It is, therefore, useless to cross for that which can be had by direct use of the breeds that are really the outcome of crosses. The shorthorn breed of cattle, so famous for producing beef, is bred with a tendency to increase their weight in flesh, and in a short time. They are not adapted to the production of milk and butter (except in individual cases), hence the crossing of the Shorthorn and Holstein will result in an animal that does not possess the capacity to produce as much beef as the Shorthorn, or milk and butter of the Holstein, the ultimate result being a loss instead of a gain.

GENERAL PURPOSE SCRUBS.

Experience teaches that any attempt to secure a general purpose animal is a step backward. Instead of the union being superior to the parent stock the final outcome is the scrub. The careful selection of centuries cannot be improved upon in a year or a decade. Hundreds of attempts have been made to combine the merits of different breeds, but the paths only led to scrubs and ruin. Each breed has its dominant talent—its superiority in a certain line—and to attempt to give it two talents is to lessen the excellence of the one. The farmer who wishes to improve must not expect a general purpose animal. He should determine in which line of excellence he prefers to improve, and then resort to the source of that improvement. If he prefers a beef-producing animal he should breed for beef only. He cannot get beef, milk and butter of the greatest quantity by any combination. The breeds have long ago been separated and he must use them for the purposes for which they are intended. It must be admitted that many of the scrubs of the present day are the results of crossing to secure general purpose animals. In poultry this is particularly noticeable, as hundreds of experiments are made in crossing the breeds every year, but in every case where departure from purity of blood has been made instead of general-purpose stock the scrubs have taken the places of the pure breeds.

UNDISPUTED MERIT.

The great success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by its manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care and skill, attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients are definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials used or the manufacture of the powder, who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome and uniform in quality. The contents of each box are exactly like every other, and will retain their powers and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time. The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity and wholesomeness and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivalled.

THE older an animal gets the more it costs to put on flesh, and if, as in the case with hogs, beef cattle can be put into shape earlier, so as to command the highest market price a pound, cattle men will readily adopt the policy of feeding off earlier. There is often more net profit in 1,000 pounds than in 1500.

START the colts into winter in good condition, and to do this let oats be a large part of their food ration. The first winter is always hard on the colts, and they need plenty of feed, and that of the very best quality, to get them along nicely. Oats are not expensive feed now, and it can hardly be considered economy to put a colt on a corn and hay ration all the winter through.

A HOUSEHOLD TREASURE.—D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best Cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Huber's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 3

SCHOOL SLATES.

The Frequent Way That Children Wash Them with Saliva is Quite Dangerous.

It has been noticed of late that a potent agent in spreading diseases among children in large schools is the school slate. Says the National Board of Health magazine on the subject: "The common practice which prevails in schools is to hand the slates to the children without any attempt being made to give each child the same slate time after time. The first thing that a child does is to clean the slate by means of the finger moistened by saliva. In this process, of course, the finger travels many times from slate to mouth and vice versa, and thus conveys to the mouth any matter which may happen to be on the slate. Thus if a child happened to be suffering from tuberculosis the bacilli might be readily conveyed to the mouth of a healthy pupil; and the same contingency would be likely to happen with greater effect if the disease were diphtheria." Children actually suffering from these diseases are of course not allowed to attend school, but the germs may be present in a latent state, and the danger is nearly as great as if they were active, says Demorest. A simple precaution is to provide a sponge with each slate.

THE records and report of the Department of Agriculture show that during the year 1895 there were 936 distinct brands of commercial fertilizers licensed for sale in this State, and that the license fee amounted to more than $12,000, all of which is available for analyses of the samples and the enforcement of the law. The prices range from $9.75 per ton to $45 per ton. The rigid enforcement of the law has done much to give Pennsylvania fertilizers the reputation which they now enjoy, and Secretary Edge states that consumers in no other State in the Union are better protected than are the farmers of Pennsylvania, and that Pennsylvania farmers have the best fertilizers for the prices asked for them of any State in the United States. During the past 25 years the consumption of fertilizers in this State has increased from 50,000 tons in 1870 to not less than 135,000 tons in 1895.
